Retail and personal services

More retailers are moving to online services providing new ways of operating and working. Technology is used to advertise, sell and in some instances deliver goods to customers in a contact-less environment. Self serve checkouts and in some instances, fully automated, unstaffed stores are already operating.