Resources and mining

Increased use of automation in this sector will create opportunities for drone operators, automation specialists, programmers, data scientists/analysts and coders for those companies involved in mining equipment, technology and services. Technology increases productivity with the introduction of driverless trains and trucks operating around the clock and improvement to safety where drones and sensors collect data from inaccessible locations.