Business and ICT
(Information and Communications Technology)

Did you know that 87% of workers require digital skills to undertake their roles successfully? People working in the ICT field are at the forefront of this change, leading essential technology advancements across all industries. Technology supports efficient business practice, providing tools to assist in project planning and management, workplace health and safety software and the use of big data analytics. Examples of ICT include cyber security and digital infrastructure.