Construction

The adoption of technology in the construction industry creates efficiencies and includes software programs used in project management and design processes such as 3D imaging, electronic collaboration programs, digital lighting systems, smart home technology and fire safety.